

Do you want to tell other people about dementia and what it is like?

Do you want to break-down myths about dementia and encourage people to talk more openly about it?

If so, come and help us make a dementia podcast and reach as many people as possible!

We are looking for eight people who are affected by dementia

You could be someone living with a diagnosis of dementia or a supporter / carer of someone living with dementia

We will offer training and support you through the making of the podcast

The project will take place in March and early April 2022

Please apply by 14th February 2022. You can complete and return the form overleaf.

Thank you for showing an interest in this project. No experience is necessary. We are looking for 8 people affected by dementia to be involved in an exciting project to make 4 podcasts. We are looking for a mixture of people with a diagnosis of dementia or a carer/supporter of someone with dementia.

We will offer you training and support around making podcasts and you will have the opportunity to ask questions of experts, including questions you think other people with dementia would like to know the answers to.

You will not be working alone and we will ask people to work in pairs, producing one podcast each. They will be professionally edited and will be launched in May 2022 as part of Alzheimer's Society Dementia Action Week.

There will be 3 training sessions in March that will cover research, interviewing and recording tips and techniques. To take part in the project you must be available to attend all 3 sessions. Each training session will be 1.5 hours long plus a 30 minute free lunch will be provided beforehand. These training sessions will take place on March 1st, 8th and 15th at St Werburghs community Centre, Bristol BS2 9TJ

The actual recording of your podcast will take place in our St Werburghs office in late March/early April. All the sessions and recordings will take place in a room that allows for social distancing and are accessible venues with free parking. Transport can also be arranged if needed.
